DETAILED ACTION

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 112

1. The following is a quotation of the second paragraph of 35 U.S.C. 112:

The specification shall conclude with one or more claims particularly pointing out and distinctly claiming the subject matter which the applicant regards as his invention.

2. Claim 19 is rejected under 35 U.S.C. 112, second paragraph, as being indefinite for failing to particularly point out and distinctly claim the subject matter which applicant regards as the invention.

In claim 19 the phrase "... per each side of the paper medium" lacks of sufficient antecedent basis. Also the claim is vague and indefinite, because it is unclear if the second deposition refers to the second deposition of claim 16, which it depends, and such layer contains pearlescent pigments or it refers to the second layer of claim 21.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 103

3. The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

4. The factual inquiries set forth in Graham v. John Deere Co., 383 U.S. 1, 148 USPQ 459 (1966), that are applied for establishing a background for determining obviousness under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) are summarized as follows:

1. Determining the scope and contents of the prior art.
2. Ascertaining the differences between the prior art and the claims at issue.
3. Resolving the level of ordinary skill in the pertinent art.

Art Unit: 1791

4. Considering objective evidence present in the application indicating obviousness or nonobviousness.
5. Claims 12-14, 16-19 and 21 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Wiley et al., US Patent No. 4,409,280.

Wiley et al. teach a decorative sheet in which a substrate, e.g., paper (column 3, lines 25-37), is printed then coated, (the first layer, 21 on figure 2), and then printed with a pigment, (layer 25 on figure 2), see abstract. The pigmented layer contains pearlescent particles, column 5, lines 13-16. Wiley et al. teach also that the coating/printing can be done by any printing, coating techniques, such as rotogravure, flexographic, screen printing, etc., column 33-44. Note that any paper is suitable for printing. As to the thickness of the coating or the base paper, optimizing such properties is within the levels of ordinary skill in the art as these properties are not critical and can be optimized. Note that as evidenced by applicant's own words, page 4, lines 26-29, reproduced below, the thickness of the coating and/or base paper are not critical to the invention and therefore, optimizing the thickness of the coating and/or the paper would have been obvious to one of ordinary skill in the art.

Naturally, nothing forbids the use of initial paper media of different thickness, or the deposition of thicknesses of coating (or pearlescent coating) having thicknesses that differ from those indicated in the method described above.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 102

6. The following is a quotation of the appropriate paragraphs of 35 U.S.C. 102 that form the basis for the rejections under this section made in this Office action:

Art Unit: 1791

A person shall be entitled to a patent unless –

(b) the invention was patented or described in a printed publication in this or a foreign country or in public use or on sale in this country, more than one year prior to the date of application for patent in the United States.

7. Claim 20 is rejected under 35 U.S.C. 102(b) as anticipated by or, in the alternative, under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as obvious over Wiley et al., US Patent No. 4,409,280.

Claim 20 is a product by process claim and Wiley et al. show a paper, (se above), which is similar to the claimed paper. In the event any differences can be shown for the product -by-process claim 20 as opposed to the product taught by the reference Wiley et al. such differences would have been obvious to one of ordinary skill in the art as routine modification of the product in the absence of a showing unexpected results, see In re Thorpe, 227 USPQ 964 (CAFC 1985). Also, As the afore mentioned claims are product by process claims, it is deemed that "[A]ny difference imparted by the product by process claims would have been obvious to one having ordinary skill in the art at the time the invention was made because where the examiner has found a substantially similar product as in the applied prior art the burden of proof is shifted to the applicants to establish that their product is patentably distinct, ..." In re Brown, 173 U.S.P.Q. 685, and In re Fessmann, 180 U.S.P.Q. 324. Further, "[P]rocess limitations are significant only to the extent that they distinguish the claimed product over the prior art product." In re Luck, 177 U.S.P.Q. 523 (1973).

Response to Arguments

8. Applicant's arguments with respect to claims 12-14 and 16-21 have been considered but are moot in view of the new ground(s) of rejection.

Conclusion

9. The prior art made of record and not relied upon is considered pertinent to applicant's disclosure in the art of "Method for producing coated paper with pearlescent effect."
